

Motorola Selects SofTechnics as North American Solution Partner of the Year

December 5, 2007 -- Akron, OH -- SofTechnics, a leading provider of integrated retail solutions today announced that Motorola's Enterprise Mobility business selected the Company as its 2007 Solution Partner of the Year at its recent Americas Partner Conference in San Diego, California.

"At SofTechnics, we have committed our retail and technical expertise to providing our customers with complete and affordable mobile price and item management solutions," said Guy Dille, Global Business Unit Leader, Retail Software & Integration for SofTechnics, a Mettler-Toledo company. "Our application software, combined with Motorola's enterprise mobility products, puts wireless and mobile technologies within reach of all retailers. The integration of application software, hardware and services provides improved productivity, allowing store associates to spend more time with their customers and less time learning and managing the system."

"SofTechnics is a valued Motorola PartnerSelect member, that has delivered unique enterprise mobility solutions and satisfaction to small and large retail customers nationwide," said Jeremy Butt, vice president of Worldwide Channels, Motorola Enterprise Mobility business. "SofTechnics' approach to the development, design and delivery of enterprise mobility solutions resulted in double-digit business growth in 2007. Their ability to consistently grow and deploy business-critical mobility solutions is the reason we selected SofTechnics as the 'Solution Partner of the Year' for 2007."
